BRIARCLIFF HISTORY

From the earliest days of Clay County, Missouri, the name Briarcliff has been synonymous with the best that the Kansas City Metropolitan area has to offer. Early settlers first crossed the Missouri on the Harlem Ferry, near the site of the present day Broadway Bridge, into Clay County. Named for the statesman Henry Clay, Clay County was organized in 1822, and is the seventh most populated county in the state.

Towns in Clay County are numerous and diverse. It stretches north to the spa resort town of Excelsior Springs, eastward to tiny Mosby, south to the Missouri River and west to suburban Riverside. McCrite Plaza at Briarcliff is officially located in Kansas City, Missouri, north of the Missouri River.

The Briarcliff Area and Briarcliff Hills were names coined by Stuart Perkins, 1930's real estate developer and entrepreneur. His subdivision, Briarcliff Hills, perches proudly on the bluffs overlooking the beautiful McCrite Plaza at Briarcliff.

Homes in Old Briarcliff were purchased by area doctors, dentists, and professional people who appreciated the beauty of the area and the close-by access to downtown Kansas City and the old municipal airport. The airport was once the headquarters of early air-travel giant Trans World Airlines and contained the office of billionaire Howard Hughes. Old Briarcliff boasts the only Frank Lloyd Wright-designed structure north of the river.

Today the newer developments of Claymont, Claymont North, Briarwood and Briarcliff West contain many beautiful single-family homes, luxury apartments and condominiums. Briarcliff Village, a neighboring cluster of locally owned retail businesses is just minutes from McCrite Plaza at Briarcliff.

McCrite Plaza at Briarcliff brings a new type of retirement living to the Northland. The McCrite Family and staff welcome our new residents.
